Korean mythology meets cutting-edge technology

ACC Original Production MUSA_Immortal Heroes

MUSA_Immortal Heroes, an ACC original production, brings Korea's classic characters back to life in a dramatic and epic story inspired by Korean mythology. The production fully utilizes the benefits of Theater 1 at ACC Theater, one of the largest "black box" theaters in Korea, to recreate fantastic scenes from myths. It features a cutting-edge U-shaped stage and brings down the barrier between the screen and the stage floor so that audiences are further immersed into the images and the spaces. The production departs from the separation between the audience seat and the stage, and audiences can watch traditional acrobatics, martial arts, flying wire performances, and magical transitions unfold before their own eyes.

Autonomous Robotics Showcase

Autonomous Robotics Showcase

A concept image for installation work, 2019, image,
Self-Driving Demonstration

The ACT Center and a research team led by Professor Park Juhong from the Pohang University of Science and Technology have been collaborating to develop a giant autonomous robot. The ACC presents an opportunity to meet the robot in person. In this event, the giant robot developed with the tensegrity structure (a contraction of "tense integrity" first used in architecture) will showcase its self-driving capabilities by showing awareness of its surroundings and recognizing and avoiding visitors and obstacles. The 2m x 1.7m biomimetic robot recognizes humans and objects based on specific shapes and color differences, and avoids them by calculating their coordinates.

During the showcase, ACC Children hosts an activity program where children can get hands-on experience with a smaller version of the robot.

The event will provide the public with an opportunity to experience a rare, convergent combination of advanced robotics and art.

2019 Black River, Hidden Forest – 6 sense

Multiple time-space powered by telepresence technology

All objects in space change and move over time. We humans witness and experience them. We take pictures and make records for later. Recent advancements in media and communication have obscured the boundary between real time-space and virtual time-space. It is becoming harder to tell virtual experiences from reality. These times call for a new interpretation of the question, "What is real?" and for contemplation of the true nature of "the here and now" and "me." This exhibition transports the time-space in the Hidden Forest in Naju and its habitants to a spacious exhibition hall in Gwangju, to share their beautiful symphony with visitors.

A story about a tiger, a lumberjack, and a family

Folktale Theater: A Tiger and the Flower Street

This folktale theater production is a contemporary reimagining of the old story The Loyal Tiger. Many Korean folk stories describe tigers as greedy and dense. On the contrary, the tiger in this story is soft-hearted and filled with love. It tells the forming of a relationship that transcends species and generations. The production invites audiences to think about love between family members and ways to help others. It features a tiger named Geummong, a lumberjack named Sunmong, and a mythical Korean creature called a dokkaebi.

A Japanese anthropologist discusses changes in Korean kitchens

Content One Campus December Open Lecture

The kitchen of Nampa Gotaek in Naju, 2019, courtesy of Gwangju University

The ACC has been hosting open lectures on kitchen and food culture since August. The December lecture marks the grand finale of the series. In this lecture, Professor Asakura Toshio (Ritsumeikan University) provides a general overview of the culinary cultures in East Asia. In the lecture, this Japanese food anthropologist looks back on changes in Korean kitchens and aspects of the Korean society and culture reflected therein, and discusses further issues related with kitchens and food. The previous lectures in the series touched on various issues about culinary culture, including refrigerators, kitchens, Vietnamese food, vegetarianism, and appropriate technology.

The Asia Culture Institute and Gwangju University have been co-organizing the Content One Campus program. They plan to use the open lecture series as an opportunity to develop documentary content about Asian culinary cultures powered by immersive VR.

The Story of May in Our Hearts

Poems and essays about the past and the present of the May 18 Uprising

This event is a part of the ACC's three-year project launched in 2018. In this project, the ACC works with local writers to publish a collection of poems and essays about the past and the present of the May 18 Uprising, and to share their stories with people across Asia.

The project plans to recover the remains of the day in May from the hearts of the "May Families" and record their histories in the form of poetry and essays.

We hope that sharing their stories with others will soothe the old wounds of the bereaved in reconciliation.

An interesting story about Nauryz, a Kazakhstan holiday

ACC Original Children's Production: What Season Will the New Year Begin?

What Season Will the New Year Begin? is a children's theater production about Nauryz, one of the biggest holidays of the Central Asian country of Kazakhstan. In many Western countries, the new year starts on the first day of January in the middle of freezing winter. Most Asian countries, like China and Korea, celebrate Lunar New Year. However, Mongolia and Kazakhstan celebrate the coming of the new year in spring. In Kazakhstan, New Year's Day is called 'Nauryz,' which means the birth of the new. This production tells a story about Nauryz with puppets, objects, and magic. The show will offer a new way to understand the four seasons and New Years as seen through children's eyes.

Nusantara, a Country of Many Islands

An exhibition celebrating the ACC's fourth anniversary

In this special exhibition celebrating the ACC's fourth anniversary, the center unveils the Nusantara Collection donated by the city of Delft, the Netherlands.

Indonesia, a country consisting of "islands beyond India," has more than 350 ethnic groups, more than 450 languages, and the diverse cultures that they represent. This exhibition features around 200 paintings, sculptures, textiles, and other exhibits created by the people who called their country "Nusantara," a country of many islands, before Indonesia's independence in the mid-20th century.

Contemporary art at the crossroads between sculpture and craft

Homo Faber: Craft in Contemporary Sculpture

What is sculpture? What is craft? The ACC presents an exhibition featuring contemporary artworks that combine the best of two disciplines highlighting the role of human hands.

Homo Faber: Craft in Contemporary Sculpture sheds a new light on contemporary sculpture after 1990 by showcasing sculpture works created with crafting skills. This exhibition represents a formalistic approach that highlights the validity of the genre at the crossroads of sculpture and craft. It promulgates an understanding of humans as "homo faber," beings who create things with tools, while presenting an allegory of contemporary sculptors, accentuating the political, social, and cultural contexts of the formality of sculpture works and offering a new interpretation of the current status of contemporary sculpture.

Expect a program offering an opportunity to immerse yourself in the beauty of contemporary sculpture and craft works created by 14 artists from seven countries.

A conversation about “migration” up close

A narrative space dedicated to thoughts and conversations about migration

Migration: Speaking Nearby
Asia Culture Center–Goethe Institut Exchange Exhibition

Advancements in transportation and communication technologies and the globalization of capitalism enhance the mobility of capital, information, things, humans, and cultures. In this sense, the present era can be characterized as an “Age of Migration.” Transnational migration creates fissures in the existing “nation state” system, and drives social and cultural changes across the world. Migration is one of the key factors in understanding contemporary society and culture. This exhibition invites a multinational group of nine curators and 21 teams of artists to explore the diverse aspects and dimensions of migration in Asia from various perspectives and narratives. It seeks to share and expand thoughts and perspectives about migration by looking into the relationship between art and migration.

* The title, Speaking Nearby, comes from a phrase mentioned by the filmmaker, composer, and scholar Trinh T. Min-Ha in her interview.

The exhibition summons Trinh’s complex and reflective phrase about cinematic representation as a meaningful concept that penetrates the diverse perspectives, approaches, and attitudes about the theme of migration.

Asia Democracy, Human Rights, and Peace Network Special Exhibition

Human rights and peace for women in Asia

ACC Culture Exchange (the Former Jeollanamdo Government Building) has been building a network dedicated to democracy, human rights, and peace with museums and memorials in and outside of Korea. After the first network forum held in May, ACC Culture Exchange seeks to strengthen exchange and cooperation within the network by hosting an exhibition co-organized by the Liberation War Museum in Bangladesh and the Tuol Sleng Genocide Museum in Cambodia. The exhibition focuses on the human rights of contemporary women in the two countries that suffered through dictatorships, wars, and ideological conflicts throughout their histories. The exhibition recounts the two countries' past, which shares many similarities with the Korean history. It will be an opportunity to examine the meaning of democracy, human rights, and peace and form a consensus that spans across Asia.

Culture Journey to Asia!

Culture Adventure provides children with cultural experiences based on Asia's rich storytelling tradition, and promotes their creative growth.

Culture Adventure consists of three areas inspired by various cultures across Asia: Nature and Living, Knowledge and Civilization, and Sound and Music. It also offers various activities tied in with ACC exhibitions, which are designed to foster understanding of the lives of Asians.

Nature and Living

Children can access the lives of Asian peoples here and see how they co-exist with nature. This area also offers various activities such as Nature in Asia that provide understanding of how people live in different parts of Asia.

Knowledge and Civilization

Featuring Architecture in Asia and other activity programs, this area offers a chance to examine various architectural works across Asia and experience the past, present, and future of Asian civilizations.

Sound and Music in Asia

Children can experience and explore various sounds, languages, and music from across Asia through Sounds in Asia and other programs.

Sia and Fam Rainbow Land Adventure

A place that fosters children's imagination, an exciting playground for preschoolers

Under the theme of "Sia and Friends' Rainbow Land Adventure," Play Kids invites children to a fantasy world beyond their wildest dreams, where they can freely explore and use their creative potential.
